

Just because Bush and his RepubliCon cronies advocate a rich get richer domestic policy which treats regulation of such things as media consolidation as if they were anti-American does not make it right for a huge right-wing media company, like Sinclair, to use its influence illegally to further its greed-based political agenda.

Please concentrate more on what is in the fair interest of the American people and less on Christian fundamentalist censorship.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
